

Amendment Policy

The Lives of the Fellows team are aware that there may be factual errors attached to some of the published obituaries, due to possible inaccurate sources at the time of writing as well as typographical errors.

If you note a factual error with one of the obituaries we would appreciate you letting us know by emailing lives@rcseng.ac.uk.

Please be aware, however, that proof of any factual amendment will be required in most cases, especially relating to obituaries from the nineteenth century and earlier.

Examples of proof include:

- Birth Certificate
- Death Certificate
- Marriage certificate
- Parish records
- Degree certificates
- University records

Please note that Lives of the Fellows editorial policy states that the obituaries reflect family situations (children and grandchildren) at the time of death only, not the generations that follow.

If you wish to add additional information to an existing published obituary, especially when little information about a surgeon exists, please email lives@rcseng.ac.uk for author's instructions and advice. Please note that all submitted obituaries go through a stringent editorial process and the Editor's decision is final.

Please note that the 'published' date at the bottom of each obituary does not necessarily reflect the time in which it was written. The published date merely indicates the date when the obituary was first put online.

There were nine printed volumes published by the Royal College of Surgeons of England between 1930 and 2005; all of these obituaries are now available online.
